President's Message

To our esteemed headmaster, Mr. Leary, and members of the faculty, I will try to put into words the thanks and gratitude we, the class of 1943 have for you.

In these chaotic and turbulent times, it is good to feel that this class has been well prepared for life after graduation by your stable and wise teachings. You listened patiently to our problems, great or small, and helped us solve them. You were happy when we were victorious, sad when we faced defeat. By your fine examples, we have learned the rudiments of good sportsmanship. It is indeed difficult for me to make known to you our sincere appreciation. I must, therefore, use the age old phrase, trite and inadequate, but straight from the heart, "Thank you!"

LEON GRANAHAN,
President.

Foreword

Most momentous in the history of our country has been the school year 1942-1943, now nearing its completion. Naturally the black clouds of war hovering over us, and the efforts of our national leaders to organize the resources of our country on a total war basis have had a profound effect on the Brighton High School student body.

A most glorious page has been added to the history of Brighton High School due to the whole-hearted cooperation shown by all in aiding the war effort.

Since September, 1942, over sixty pupils and five members of the faculty have joined the United States armed forces. Many of our seniors have availed themselves of the opportunity afforded them by the Boston School Committee of early dismissal to accept war defense work.

However, those pupils who continued their attendance at school have not been found wanting in their efforts to help carry this war to a successful conclusion. First of all, there has been a marked and increasing tendency of the pupils in applying themselves more assiduously and diligently to their school work, and thus better prepare themselves to perform the duties which lie just ahead.

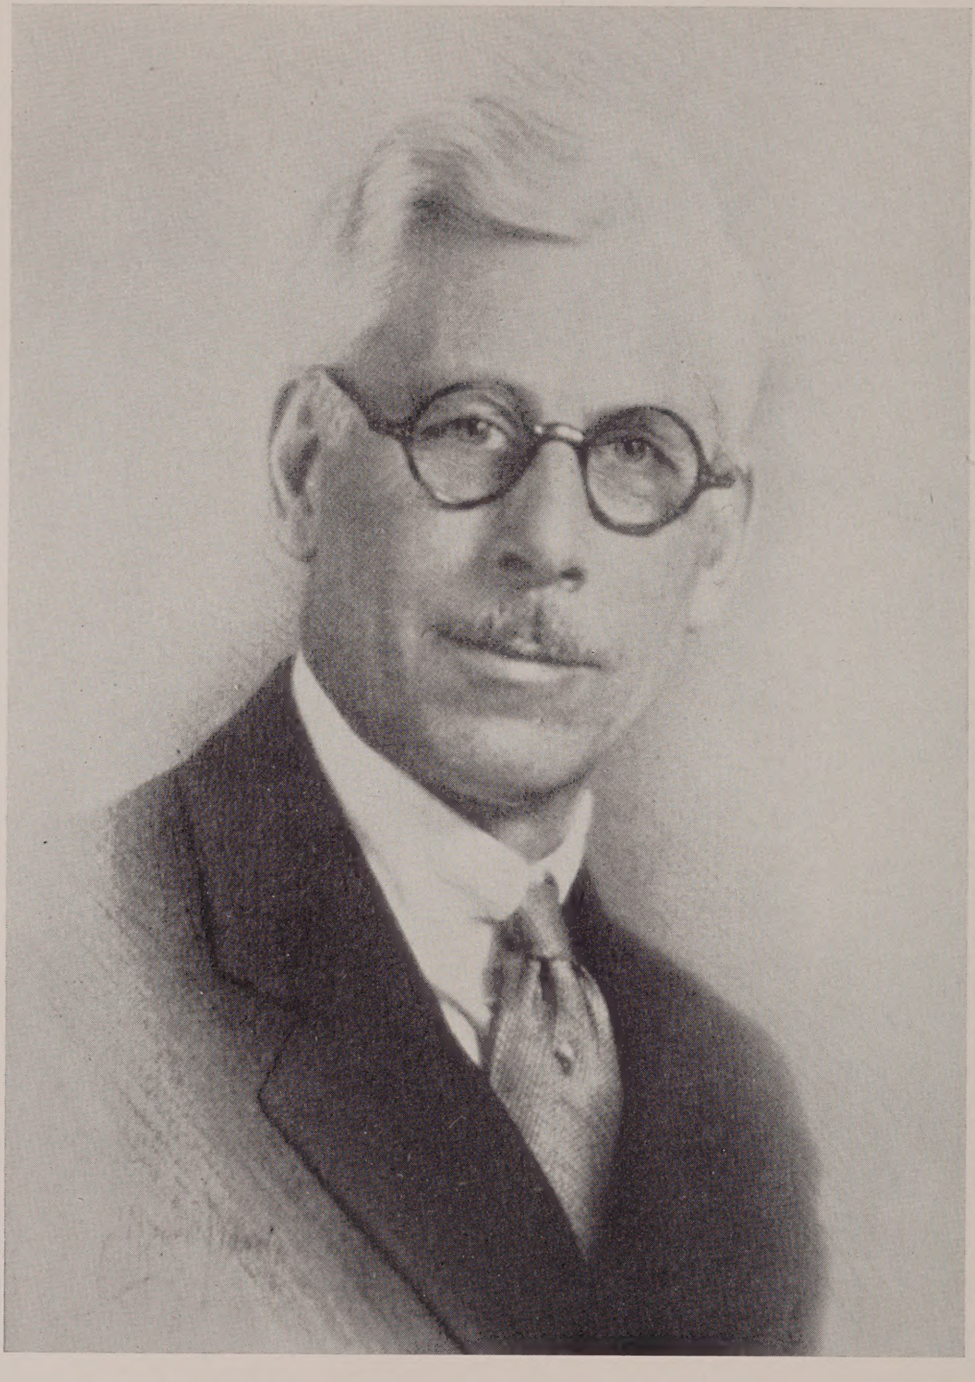
The purchasing by pupils of defense stamps and war bonds is becoming ever greater in number and amount. Many of the older pupils have donated their blood at the Red Cross center, and those too young for this have assisted in various scrap drives, knitting, junior defense work, learning first aid, and accepting part-time employment with the primary objective of helping to fill positions left open due to the war situation.

May I congratulate those loyal, true American boys and girls of Brighton High School who so sincerely, whole-heartedly, courageously, and unselfishly entered into this important work? And in particular do I wish to congratulate the members of the Class of 1943 because it was their leadership, inspiration, and guidance which served as a shining example to the younger pupils of the school.

JOSEPH A. LEARY,
Headmaster

Mr. Joseph A. Leary

Headmaster



Mr. Sidney Peterson

Dedication

To Mr. Sidney Peterson

WITH SINCERE ADMIRATION, WE, THE CLASS OF 1943, DEDICATE THIS, THE FIFTEENTH EDITION OF THE "GOTHIC", TO MR. SIDNEY PETERSON, FORMER HEAD OF THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Sidney Peterson

The students, the faculty, and the alumni will never forget Mr. Sidney Peterson who unselfishly devoted forty-one years of his life to the young men and women of Brighton High School. Not only shall we all remember him as an eager and most capable teacher, but also as a friend, ever warm, sincere, and kind toward those with whom he comes in contact.

A graduate of the Boston Public Latin School and of Harvard College, he did graduate work at Harvard, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, at Boston University, and at the University of Paris where he did work under Madame Curie. Besides this year in France, he spent in travel and study six summers in Europe.

After two years at the Worcester Classical High School, he came to the Brighton High School, which he saw grow from a school of 250 to one of 1700 pupils. In those early years, he coached in athletics and was in charge of all social and military functions of the school in addition to his regular full-time instruction in science. In 1907, he was made Master, Head of the Science Department, in which capacity he served until his retirement. It was in 1904 that he took charge of the school programs. That increasingly arduous task of making the assignments of studies for all teachers and pupils he did unaided, and with uncanny perfection. Since he is a man of vision and ideas, he had a tremendous influence upon the school and thus proved to be an able assistant to the headmasters under whom he served.

Appreciation of his professional ability is shown by the offices to which he has been elected: President of the Eastern Association of Physics Teachers; Vice-President of the New England Association of Chemistry Teachers; President of the Masters, Heads of Departments of Boston High Schools; President of the Science Council of the Boston High Schools; Chairman of the Committee for the Course of Study in Science for the Cooperative Courses in Boston High Schools; a member of the original committee to formulate the eligibility rules for interscholastic athletics; Chairman of the Committee on Standard Specifications for Science Laboratories.

Mr. Peterson was always happy to help his pupils with their problems and was always eager to teach them honor and the joy of accomplishment through the beauties and facts of science, instilling in them science's unfailing integrity. He has remained young in spirit with the two generations of his pupils so that they ever consider him their friend. To the hundreds of pupils he has been fair, just, enthusiastic, kind, sympathetic, loyal, and an inspiration to many of them to follow science as their life's work.

His fellow teachers have missed his consistent friendliness and his unvarying loyalty. Indeed, he is a friend in whom confidences are safe and from whom advice is dependable.

No teacher in the century of the Brighton High School has left the mark of his influence on the school as has Sidney Peterson.

Following him into the sunny clime of his new home in Florida go the heartfelt wishes of his pupils and colleagues for his continued good health and full enjoyment of life.

"His teaching was dedicated —to the belief and faith in Youth that is full and life-giving
—to contrition resigned and penitence felt for the mistake-maker
—to a faith whose unknown source is a well-spring of heart and soul courage."

Mr. Sidney Peterson

AN APPRECIATION

(Written by Miss Marion A. Hawes, Former Head of Foreign Languages Department)

When Sidney Peterson came to Brighton High School in 1901, he found a school of about two hundred and fifty pupils rapidly growing in numbers and importance under the leadership of Mr. Frederic Allison Tupper, its Headmaster.

The new comer was greeted with a special welcome by the little corps of teachers who for years had been enjoying the wise counsel and direction of his father, Mr. Ellis Peterson, Supervisor and later, Assistant Superintendent of the Boston schools.

Mr. Peterson came to his new duties with an excellent preparation, having been graduated from the Boston Latin School and Harvard College, having taken graduate courses at the Worcester Polytechnic and at the Massachusetts Instiue of Technology, and having taught in the Worcester Classical and in the Newton High School.

Almost immediately his high scholarship and attractive personality gained him a place in the regard of teachers and scholars, which time has only made more secure.

An athlete himself, he was hailed by the boys as their leader and for several years he coached the track, hockey, and basketball teams, and had charge of all the outside activities of the school. On the great days of the competitive military drills in Mechanics Building, he went and returned with the Companies from Brighton. It was he who superintended the hanging of the beautiful orange and black banner, who saw to it that every cadet received the flowers and candy, thrown to him by his friends in the audience, and who joined in the triumphal, homeward march of his victorious Companies proudly bearing the flags which they had won.

All these activities, however engrossing, were only side activities, and were quite subsidiary to the real work of teaching to which he devoted himself, heart and soul. The Science Department of our School under his headship yielded to none in the city for excellence, and Mr. Peterson was in the very first rank of teachers of science.

The record of his studies and achievements is a notable one. He has taken graduate courses in Science, Education, Psychology, Music, German, and French at Harvard College and Boston University. At Bates College he took special courses in Education, Poetry, and French. He has travelled extensively, having visited Europe seven times, once for a stay of fourteen months, during which he visited Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Holland, France, and England. He studied French at the University of Grenoble; and at the University of Paris, he took courses in Chemistry and Zoology, and had the unusual advantage of studying Radio-activity with Madame Curie.

Many a college president has had no better equipment, and we may well be thankful that Mr. Peterson had chosen to devote his unusual talents and acquirements to the boys and girls of Brighton High School.

Mr. Peterson's hobby is the Great Outdoors with its incidental gardening, winter sports, and canoeing. How often have we seen him joyfully departing for his vacation in the country, but even then, not wholly free from cares of school; for in his suitcase was always the material for the high school program, which he has made out for many years, a masterpiece of patient, ingenious labor, a mighty maze transformed into a perfect plan.

No one can estimate the value of his personal influence. His unfailing courtesy, his genuine kindness and readiness to give help, wherever needed, his adherence to the loftiest standards of truth and honor are combined with a keen sense of humor, and a very human sympathy with the joys and sorrows of his pupils. In these days called by Henry Dwight Sedgwick the days of the "vanishing gentleman," he still illustrates Chaucer's ideal, "a veray parfit gentil Knight."

Editor's Note

As we, the members of the Class of 1943, turn the pages of this yearbook in the years ahead, many fond memories—of our classmates, of our splendid teachers, and of our considerate headmaster—will come to mind. After we leave Brighton High School, most of us boys will join the ranks of fighting men. The girls face responsibilities greater than those of any graduates before them. No matter where we are or what we may be doing in the years to come, we shall always think of ourselves as a part of the Class of 1943.

On behalf of the staff, I thank Mr. Leary and all the teachers for their assistance in producing this, the fifteenth edition of the "Gothic". To Miss Elizabeth I. O'Neill, whose experience, guidance, and understanding have been important factors in the production of this yearbook, we wish to express our gratitude.

Athletics

Football

After devoting many weeks to strenuous practice, the day of our first game finally arrived. We had the responsibility of upholding the reputation of our predecessors.

By defeating Vocational High School, we made a fine start. Our endeavors were not in vain when we placed Charlestown High in the proverbial schoolboy cellar.

As we met our most difficult opponent, namely South Boston High, we felt it would be a close game. It definitely was, with South Boston giving us our first loss in three years. The following game was lost to Boston College High. Looking forward to meeting East Boston on the gridiron, our hopes of winning were high, but to no avail.

Our "bad luck streak" had to terminate sometime, much to the disgust of Hyde Park fans. Regaining our confidence by this victory over Hyde Park, we added a final game to our credit by defeating our rivals, Jamaica Plain.

We have the utmost confidence that those of 1944, under the zealous coaching of Mr. Murphy, will retrieve the record of former teams.

To them we extend our best wishes for success in the coming year.

Hockey

This year, the hockey team enjoyed one of its most successful seasons. Although hit hard by ineligibilities, injuries, and enlistments, we finished the season within three points of the district championship.

Under Coach Murphy's able guidance, the squad began practice shortly before Christmas. Until it was cold enough for ice, we were obliged to practice in the gym and in the yard behind the school.

Spectators at the Hyde Park game, our first this year, were surprised by a 1-1 tie. Since we had an untried goalie in the nets, the results were gratifying to all of us. Before the next game came around, Tracy Evans, a sophomore, won the important position which he held all year.

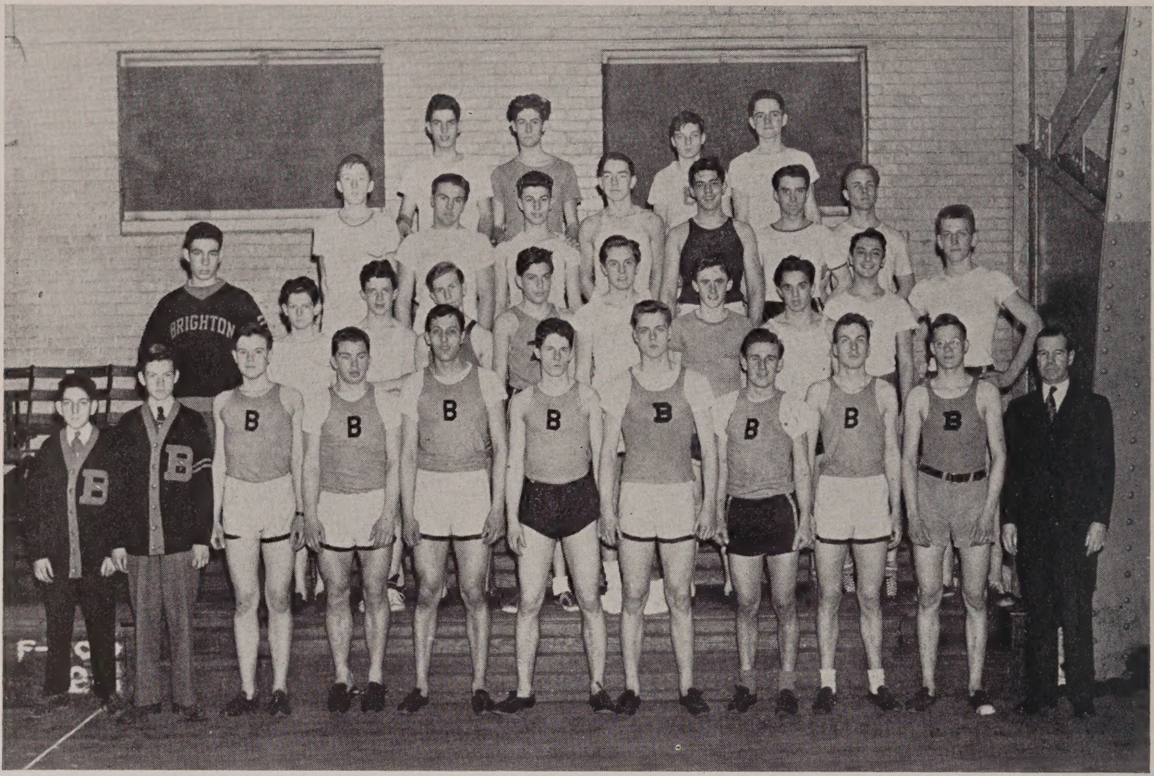
The first line of Quinn, Donahue, and Bowen was among the lines which scored highest in the city. On the defense, Granahan and Davis performed admirably. Some of the capable reserves were West, O'Connor, Aldonis, and Donaldson.

The cooperation and team spirit which is shown by all our teams was evident under the most trying conditions. While finishing third in the league, the Orange and Black displayed true loyalty, which is always characteristic of Brighton High School athletes.

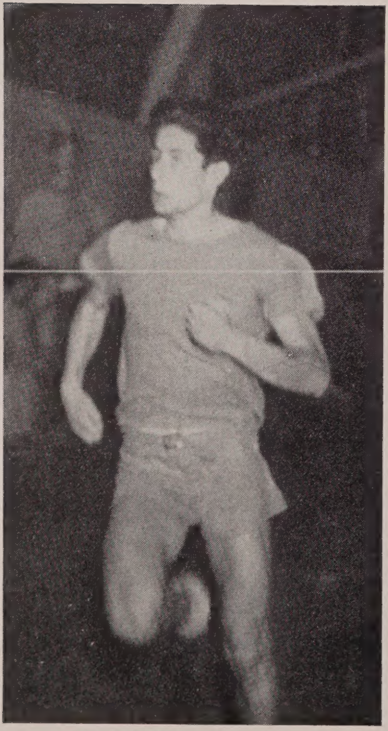
I hope that in the future all Brighton hockey teams will uphold the qualities representative of Brighton and that they will ever enjoy victory.

To Mr. Murphy go oup heartfelt thanks for what he has taught us—sportsmanship, integrity, and fair play.

ROBERT BOWEN, Captain



Track



This year, the Brighton High School Track Team enjoyed one of its most successful seasons. Although the team was injured by the pre-season enlistments of potential winners, Donald Culgin and Gregory Henesy, it went on to win two of the three quadrangular meets. In the District meet, we finished runner-up to champion Hyde Park. However, in the Reggies, Brighton scored more points than any other District School.

The squad which numbered only forty boys, had an unusually brilliant display of talent. In class D, sophomore Afcin Schloss broke the 220 yard dash record in the District meet and continued to win the coveted Regimental championship. Gerardo Coletti, another first year man, was outstanding in the 176 yard run capturing a second in the Districts. Lee Anthony in the Class C 50 yard dash, Hale Lait in the A-B 440, and Zaven Chutchian in A-B 600, were constant winners. Other consistent point-earners include Paul Kent, Donald McGowan, Ara Zulalian, William Collins, Robert Sampson, and Russell Wallen. In the relays, the A-B team of Collins, Granahan, Colby, and Aldonis and the D team of Butera, Kelley, Coletti, and Schloss, both won their races in the District meet. In the State meet, Martin Tuhna leaped to a first in the high jump while Colby took a fourth in the 50 yard dash.

As captain of the Track Team, I could ask for no greater response of cooperation and enthusiasm from the boys. At all meets, they were capable and willing to do their utmost for the team. I can truthfully say that if the teams in years to come are as efficient and responsive as the one I have captained, Brighton High School will go down in the annals of glory for unsurpassed honors in track.

"AL" COLBY, Captain

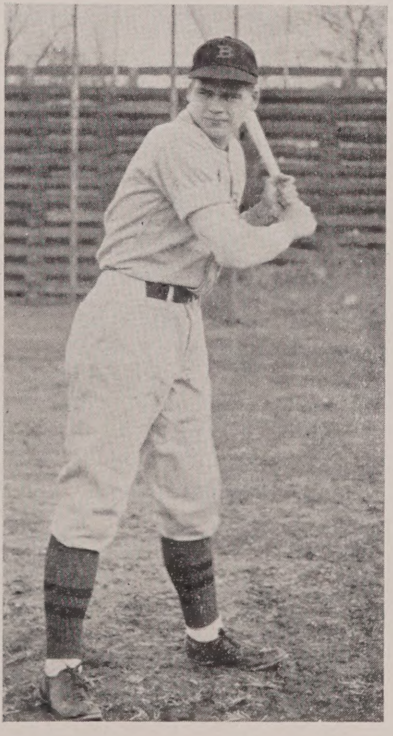
Baseball

With boys either obtaining war jobs, or joining the armed forces, Coach Murphy shaped up a good ball team. Never in previous years was there such a small number of candidates for the team. But with our "never say die" coach, we managed to scrape up nine able-bodied players.

Because of the cold weather at the beginning of the season, we did not have much practice outdoors, but we made the best of those days which were at least fair enough for some quick drills. The only regulars returning were: Pitcher "Bob" Holland, First Baseman "Dick" Boyle, Outfielder "Dick" Grant, who was converted into a "crackerjack" catcher; and Kidik, at second base. Pitcher "Bob" Holland carried most of the burden on his shoulders by hurling at least seventy-five per cent of our games. Also he was our most reliable man at bat. Others on the team were "Nick" Zaccola, a sophomore, who did very well at the short stop position; third baseman, "Charley" Hershman, who could beat out a bunt like "nobody's business"; and two boys who patrolled the outfield like major leaguers, Frank Carrol and Leon Granahan.

Most of us, especially we seniors, knew it would be our last chance to play baseball for the duration, so we did our utmost to make our last days our best days.

WILLIAM J. KIDIK, Captain



Cheer Leaders

Each week of the football season, the cheer leaders, Sally Carr, Irene Carr, Elaine Burns, Virginia Raymond, Gloria Josephs, Elaine Connolly, Jean Hathaway, Elaine Boly, and Louise Kilroy cheered for the Brighton High School football team.

The squad led three assemblies this year. They were rallies for our three big games of the year: Roslindale High, South Boston High, and Boston College High. They presented football songs and many new cheers.

As the vivid orange and black of our football team came on to the field, they led the spectators in cheers and songs to show the boys that all Brighton High was backing them up. At each game, the girls helped the boys fight for their school colors with faithfulness and enthusiasm.

The cheer leaders wore black velvet skirts, black and orange football sweaters, orange hats, and orange socks.

The great success of the cheer leaders is well known; may it be the same in the years to come.

Class Poem

We've reached our shining goal at last;
Our graduation day draws near:
We've gleaned the wisdom of the past;
We face the future without fear.

Across the gladness of this hour
Grim war has laid a searing blight;
But strong in youth, and learning's power,
We'll keep our country's honor bright.

Our task a war-torn world to free
From tyranny and ruthless greed:
Here, at the shrine of liberty,
We pledge our all to human need.

The noble aim and high endeavor,
The love of truth thou didst impart,
Shall be our guiding star forever,
Deep cherished Brighton, in each heart.

O slowly our reluctant feet
Turn from the loved and sheltering walls
To new adventure, brave to meet
The challenge, where stern duty calls.

Farewell, dear school, dear friends; we'll march
Uncharted roads with purpose high;
Thy lessons, Brighton, in our hearts,
We'll keep our banners in the sky.

ROBIN HASELTINE

Brighton High School Patrol

In the year 1937, the B. H. S. Patrol was introduced to the Brighton High School by our headmaster, Mr. Joseph A. Leary, who at that time was the head of the Mathematics department.

This year, Mr. Dowell and Mr. Romano were in charge of the Patrol and with their excellent ideas on discipline, it has been brought to perfection.

Each year, the teachers in charge have the task of selecting thirty boys who are capable of keeping order and cleanliness, and creating a feeling of good will among the new members of the student body. This group of boys is largely picked from athletic teams, Drill Captains, and good all-round students.

The boys carried out their orders very accurately throughout the year, not only in the lunch room, but also throughout the school. With the installation of this fine group of boys, a marked improvement has been noticed in the school spirit, especially in trying times such as these when it is needed so badly.

As the B. H. S. Patrol completes its very successful year, I feel that it is fitting for me as captain of this organization to pay tribute to the able lieutenants who have aided in making this year's Patrol a real success: Jack Rufo, Walter Adamovicz, Edward Cunningham, Leon Granahan, James Temple, Paul Kent, Alfred Colby, Robert Leonard Donald McGowan, and Donald Culgin.

May the B. H. S. Patrols of the years to come keep to the high standards that the Patrol has established.

OFFICERS

Captain	Stanley Barron
First Lieutenant	Richard Grant
Second Lieutenant	Alfred Colby
Drum Major	Donald Kelley

This year, due to the enthusiasm of its members, the Brighton High School Band has developed into a splendid musical organization under the superb guidance of Mr. Fortunato Sordillo, the assistant Director of Music in the Boston Public Schools, and Mr. Virchow, of the faculty, who has charge of the band.

Many times during the year, the band has been called upon to perform at different occasions and it has met the approval of the school at these times.

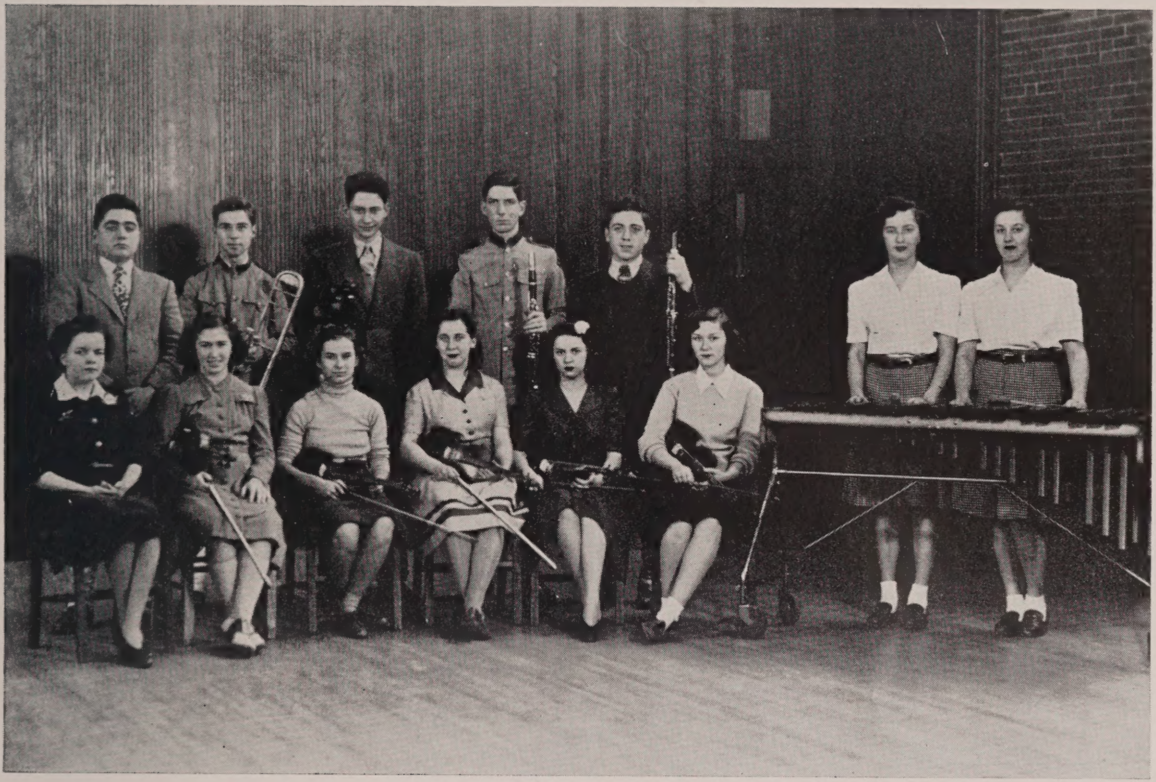
The whole school, as well as the band, looked forward with anticipation to the prize drill competition and the School Boys' Parade at which time the band had an opportunity to display its ability.

Much credit is due to Mr. Barret, who instructs the woodwind section, Mr. Gardner, instructor for the drums, and Messrs. Patch and Donovan for instructing the brass. These men have done much toward improving the quality of the band.

The band assembles three times each week. On Tuesday, the woodwind, drums, and brass meet separately for instrumental instruction while on Thursday and Friday the band performs as a unit.

The Band wishes to express its sincere wishes for success to Mr. Dowell, former teacher in charge of the band, who has left the faculty to teach in war work.

STANLEY BARRON, Captain



Orchestra

The Brighton High School Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. H. Dana Strother and under the management of Mr. Warren C. Burnham, has done a great piece of work this year.

The orchestra was an important factor in making various school assemblies more enjoyable. It also played an important part in the success of the Senior Play. As in the past, the orchestra had the honor of playing at the Brighton Evening School graduation and at the colorful Class Day.

It consists of a piano, two trumpets, two drums, three clarinets, eight violins, one saxophone, one trombone, and a marimba.

IRENE CARR

Brighton Towers

This year we no longer have with us the traditional "Imp" as the Brighton High School magazine. In its place has come the new "Brighton Towers", named after the twin towers on the front of our school building. But for the change in name, the magazine remains the same. It is the product of the united effort of teachers and pupils who have taken upon themselves the responsibility of turning out every two months a magazine for the pupils of Brighton High School. All literary material is written by the students. This includes stories, editorials, essays, poems, book reviews, school news and activities, alumni notes, and all other matters relating to the school.

Throughout this year copies of "Brighton Towers" have been sent to servicemen from Brighton High School whenever and wherever possible. Many letters from these men have arrived at Brighton High School expressing appreciation of this gift. We are all more than glad to do this small bit in making happier these servicemen, and wish to thank all the students for their splendid cooperation in making this possible.

Capt. Robert V. Dallahan

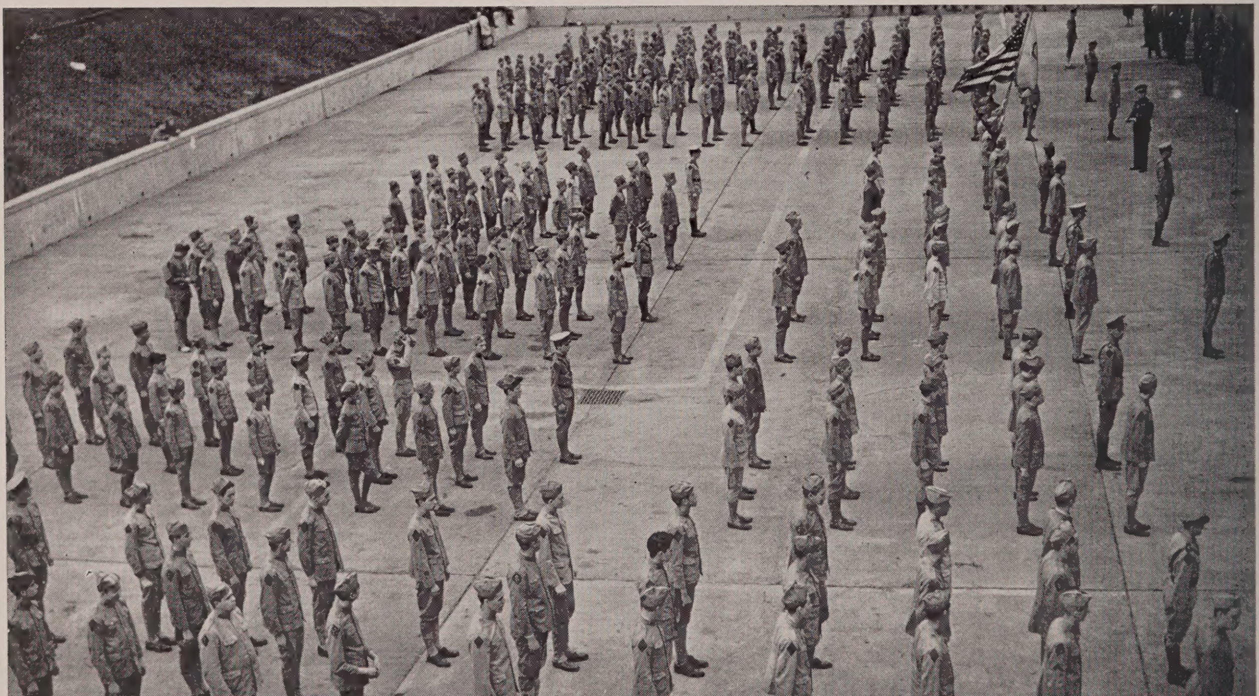
(Retired)



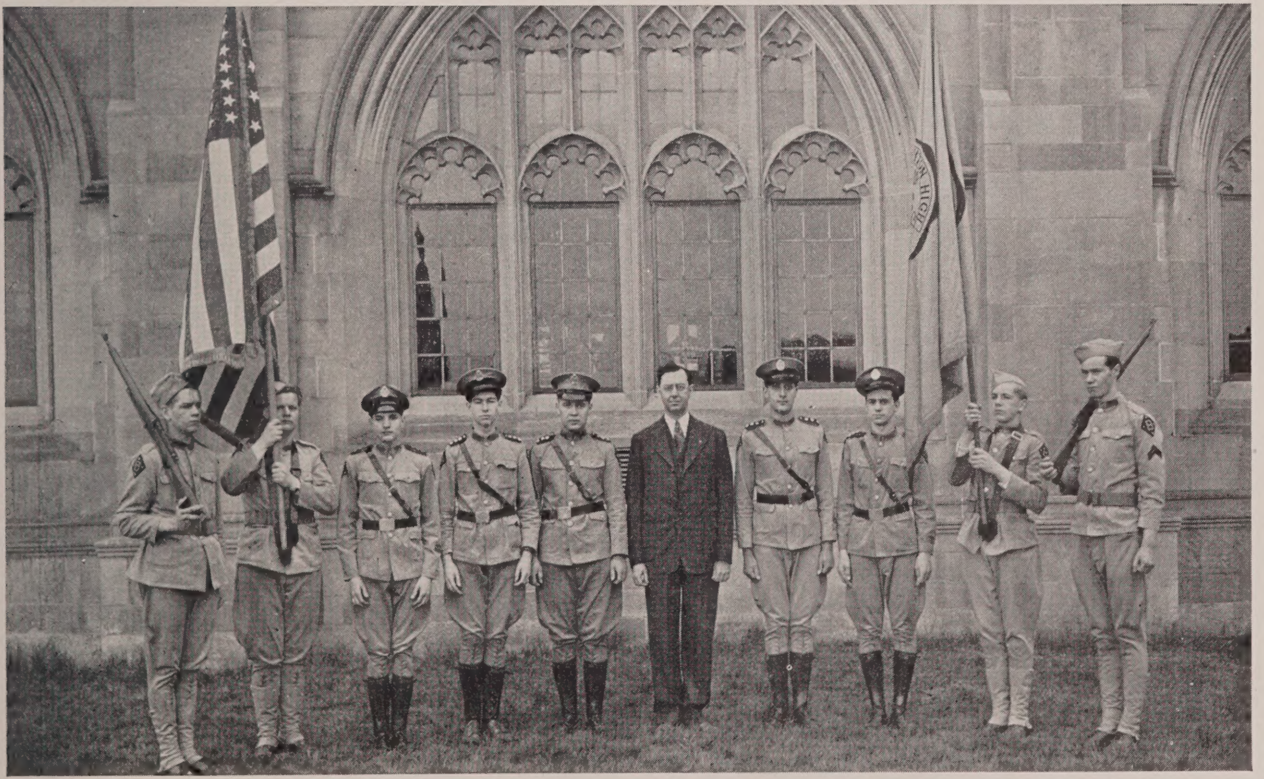
Brighton High School Regiment

Although the armed forces and defense work called to duty many of our boys this year, seven "crack" companies were formed.

By combining the skill of Captain Dallahan and the ability of the officers, these seven companies became one of the finest regiments this school has ever seen.

On May sixth the regimental competition was held at the school. Not only did the companies prove their skill but also the band demonstrated in a first class manner. After each company had performed, the judges awarded the following prizes:

1st Prize—Brigadier General Zaven Chutchian
2nd Prize—Colonel Walter Adamovicz
3rd Prize—Lt. Colonel Nicholas Flione
4th Prize—Major Leonard Schneider
5th Prize—Major Robert Doyle



Mr. Leary and Winning Officers

Student Council

President	Thomas Flynn
Vice-President	Mary Dyer
Treasurer	Margaret French
Secretary	Irene Ford

The Brighton High School Student Council has had, in 1942-43, a very successful year. It has tried to follow, as closely as possible, the war program suggested by the Federal Government for school organizations. Because of this, many of its older, almost traditional social functions, have been eliminated, but when possible, the council has combined the more serious war-time activities with the lighter social functions.

The officers and members of the Council have accomplished the tasks suggested to them with spirited industry and enthusiasm, spurred on, perhaps, by the realization that they were cooperating with the government in a time when the cooperation of all is necessary for the victory which must be ours.

The Council has, in the course of the year, sponsored a book and magazine drive, a scrap drive, a war stamp drive, and a war bond campaign. It has also submitted a "Schools at War" scrapbook, containing evidences of Brighton High School's contribution to the war effort, a nationwide competition.

The Council feels that it has made, in 1942-43, a contribution to the war effort worthy of our school.

THOMAS FLYNN, President

French Club

Under the expert direction of Miss Miller, Le Cercle Francais has concluded an active and enjoyable year. The meetings which took place each month gave to the members an opportunity to exercise and use their knowledge of French. Different games and popular songs as well as French comedies and various well known poems were enjoyed at the meetings. Both speakers and listeners had their ability to speak and understand French greatly increased through club activities. From articles taken from French periodicals, we gained an interesting background of France.

During visits to the French rooms of the Museum of Fine Arts, we saw the portraits of various famous French authors whose works and lives we have studied.

Because of our thorough enjoyment of it, this year's club will always live in our memories. We hope that all future clubs will be as successful as ours has been.

ELLY OPPENHEIM,

German Club

President	Richard Favreau
Vice-President	Albert Feldman
Secretary-Treasurer	Lorraine Sears

This year's German Club was a success because of the excellent cooperation of its members with its committees and because of the splendid suggestions of its faculty adviser, Miss O'Brien.

The contributions and the constructive criticism of Marion Goetz, Elly Oppenheim, Elizabeth Rubin, and Walter Simon, all of whom have lived in Europe, added to our success in the preparation and execution of our different programs. We feel that we have fulfilled the purposes of our club; they are to promote a fluency in the language and to introduce to each other those pupils commonly interested in learning and using German.

At some of our monthly meetings, we enjoyed learning the history, customs, and even the folk dances of the country.

May all the future German Clubs be as successful as our small group has been this year.

RICHARD FAVREAU,

Spanish Club

President	Arlene Davidson
Vice-President	Irene Carr
Secretary	Lucille Crowe
Treasurer	Frances Farrell

Until this year, Spanish was the only language in this school which did not have its own club. Consequently, a club was formed, and, at the first meeting, the above officers were elected.

At the meetings, we all sang many popular songs, played games, and presented plays—all in Spanish. Later on in the year, recordings which were made in South America were enjoyed by all. The members danced to these. The congas proved most enjoyable. Naturally, Spanish is spoken exclusively. This aids the members to develop a fluency in the language. Because Spanish is an easily spoken tongue, we have not found it too difficult to express ourselves at the meetings.

We of the Spanish Club sincerely hope that the coming years will find more and more students studying and enjoying Spanish as we have.

ARLENE DAVIDSON,

Reading Club

President	Vasilia Verenis
Secretary-Treasurer	Janice Smith

The Reading Club, under the competent supervision of Miss Bailey and Miss Marshall, meets in the Art Room the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. Its members are girls who were honor students in English in their junior year.

The main purpose of the Reading Club is to broaden our acquaintance with familiar writers and good books.

In our various programs, all members of the club take part during the year. Book reviews, plays, humorous essays, poetry, mystery stories, and biographies are some of our subjects. Special programs are planned for the holidays which include Thanksgiving Day, Christmas, Valentine Day, and Mother's Day.

Occasional field trips include visits to a newspaper plant, the Gardner and Art Museums, and literary shrines near home.

This year, we have devoted part of our time to work essential to the war effort.

On Junior Day, we entertain our successors with a play, music, games, and refreshments. We hope they may find in the Reading Club as many pleasant hours and as much enjoyment as we have found.

VASILIA VERENIS,
President

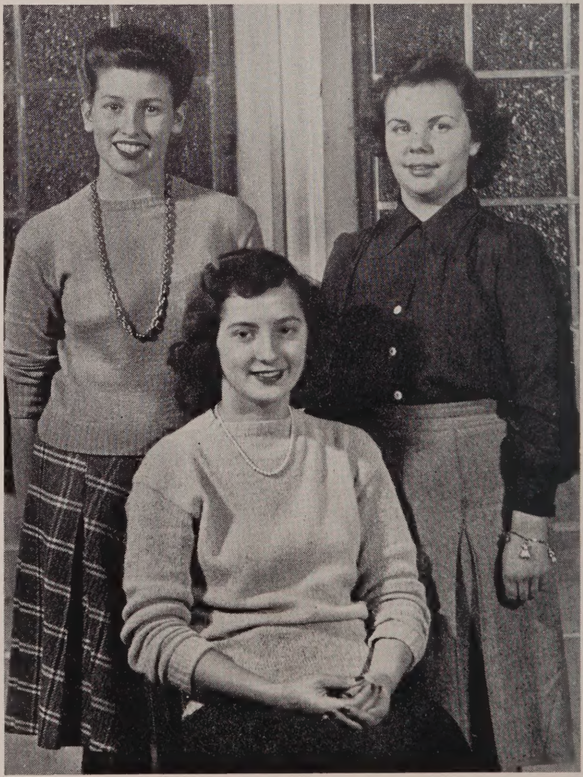
Dramatic Club

President	Sally Carr
Vice-President	Lorraine Holland
Secretary	Jane Winer
Treasurer	Charlotte Myers
Sergeant At Arms	Lucy Clark

This year, as in the past, the Dramatic Club has been under the capable direction of Mr. McNamara, and a most entertaining and instructive year has been enjoyed by the club's members.

The function of the organization is the application of the theories of speech improvement. The members have explored the many and varied means of cultivating a pleasant, well-modulating speaking voice. The hours spent in the pursuit of this goal have not been wasted. The members agree that definite progress has been made in the development of the individual voices, and in this regard, they are united in extending to Mr. McNamara their sincerest appreciation of his efforts in their behalf.

SALLY CARR,
President



Art Club

President	Gladys Farris
Vice-President	Irene Carr
Secretary	Virginia Mercer
Treasurer	Pauline Williams

Between war activities, such as rationing and the like, the Art Club succeeded in having some enjoyable meetings.

The Art Club is not for individual accomplishment, but for the pleasure of the group. The admission is not great talent, but the desire to employ art in more varied ways.

Group activities, which went to make an interesting year for us, were the extended use of water colors, pastel, and charcoal, as well as new phases of clay modeling, block printing, and wood painting. Without the patient and talented leadership of our faculty adviser, Miss Glennon, the club and the enjoyment it has offered would not have been possible.

On behalf of the club members, I wish to extend best wishes for the advancement of the Art Club in the years to come.

GLADYS FARRIS,
President

Music Appreciation Club

President	Ann Dillon
Vice-President	Lucille Crowe
Secretary	June Fine
Treasurer	Bessie Kounanis

While the world has been engaged in a bloody conflict, we of the Music Appreciation Club, have spent many profitable and enjoyable hours listening to the music of the world's greatest composers. What we have received from this, the culture, the pleasure, the education, and the knowledge we have gained of other peoples, through their music, can never be taken from us.

For the first time, sophomores were permitted to join our club. We are all very grateful for having had the opportunity of hearing such peerless and inspiring music. Our thanks go to Miss Miller whose appreciation of music she has imparted to us and to the club members of former years whose efforts have produced the records and the phonograph we have enjoyed so much this year. May the Music Appreciation Clubs of future years continue to thrive and profit by music.

ANN DILLON,
President

Commercial Club

The Commercial Club, under the capable direction of Miss Burpee, is an organization composed of senior girls who specialize in commercial subjects. It is both a social and educational club.

The officers and executive committee, voted in by the girls, proved to be efficient in their positions. Careful planning, team work, and interest on the part of these girls and our adviser made each meeting a treat.

The social events this year included a visit to a radio station where we attended "The Yankee House Party"; a pleasant visit to the Fisher Business School; roller skating at the Co-ed; bowling, which was our chief delight. All the girls contributed good books to Camp Edwards. These were delivered by the officers. Climaxed with a delightful picnic, the happy meetings will long be remembered.

Thus an enjoyable year was had by all. We know that the Commercial Club will continue to flourish.

MARION DONOVAN,

Glee Club

President	Sally Carr
Vice-President	Irene Carr
Secretary	Marilyn Shotz
Treasurer	Jacqueline Chabot

The Glee Club probably has the largest attendance of any other club in the school. Made up of sophomores, juniors, and seniors, it is under the direction of Mr. Francis Burke.

There is a first octet and a second octet of the picked voices. During the year, the club has performed at assemblies and at other school activities.

This all-girl organization has experienced many happy and musical hours under the direction of Mr. Burke. On several occasions, the group has sung so well that it has been well received.

The fine cooperation from all the members resulted in a delightful and unforgettable year.

We all extend our sincere wishes to Mr. Burke for his tolerance.

Senior Promenade

For those going to the Senior Prom, May 14 was a very long day at school. Eagerly, they waited for the closing of school; each one was thinking of the glorious evening ahead. At home, they prepared for the last and most important social event, the Senior Promenade.

By nine o'clock, couples were arriving at the Hotel Continental. They made their way into the home-like and attractive interior of the lobby. Going through the French doors, they saw before them the beautiful main ballroom. At last, they actually were at the prom. The inviting rhythms of Baron Hugo's music persuaded them to join in the dancing. Adding to the pleasure of the evening was the charming voice of the vocalist. After a few preliminary numbers came the Grand March, led by the president of the class, Leon Granahan, and his lovely partner.

In the brief intermission, delicious cake and cooling punch were served. During this time, they had an opportunity to reminisce about their happy days at the castle which were soon to come to an end.

Among the most enjoyable dances were the Elimination Dance, which held the attention of all; the Medley Dance, which featured the latest popular tunes—it was really a thrill to dance among the streamers released during this number; and the most beautiful of them all, the Moonlight Dance. Only the light of a moon illuminated the ballroom.

The patrons and patronesses were: Mr. Joseph A. Leary, Mr. and Mrs. Percy A. Brigham, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Fitzgerald and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew P. Butler.

The success of the evening was due largely to the efforts of Mr. John E. Fuller, who worked with the Executive Committee. The committee consisted of Doris Kelly, John Ardolino, and Anne Sheridan. Others who helped were Jean Adams, Patricia Bartlett, Gladys Farris, Thomas Flynn, Leon Granahan, James Nolan, and George Yee. The Senior Class is grateful to Miss Glennon and other members of the art department who contributed many useful and attractive posters.

The Senior Promenade will long remain in the memories of the Class of 1943.

ANNE SHERIDAN

Senior Play

1943 has seen one of the most entertaining and enjoyable of the annual Senior Plays. As always, the presentation of the play has added a never-to-be-forgotten chapter to the book of memories to be treasured in the years to come by all those who were present. A story remarkably well-interpreted by the youthful actors, a well-chosen cast, and weeks of persevering practice combined to give the student public a production with the professional touch.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Burnham have successfully turned their efforts toward the directing and producing of the Baker play, "The Hickory Stick." A world of credit is due these two hard-working persons who have given unceasingly of their time and guidance. Mrs. Burnham has employed every ounce of her extensive knowledge of the theater to improve to the utmost the finished drama, while Mr. Burnham has devoted himself to the unspectacular tasks which receive no program credit, but which constitute an all-important part in any stage offering.

"The Hickory Stick" deals with a lovely, headstrong young girl, Judy, and her difficulties.

The story begins on the night of an important dinner dance for the young people. Judy has been invited by the host, and consequently she, oh so casually, impresses upon her family that she is more or less hostess. The circumstance is one of those social plums relished by all normal young women, but enjoyed and flaunted beyond its merit by Judy. This unfavorable attitude is not apparent to her doting parents who, while they have been congratulating themselves on having such an exquisitely beautiful daughter, have never concerned themselves with her disposition beyond soothing her sulky moods and indulging her every caprice. So much attention have they bestowed upon Judy, indeed, that they have rather thoroughly neglected their second child, Paul, a sensitive, rather pathetically unhappy boy of fifteen. Because his sister holds undisputed sway in their home, he attempts to find friends elsewhere and falls in with a gang of hoodlums. Barely given a thought in passing by his parents, Paul becomes more and more admiring of his disreputable friends, whom he considers "real men; regular guys", because it can't be said exactly that they are sissies. His perfectly normal lack of maturity prevents him from discerning the difference between red-blooded young men and confirmed bullies.

And so it happens that, as Judy is preparing for her triumphant evening, chattering happily to her friends who have stopped by for her, the McKinney home is thrown into turmoil by the sudden entrance of a policeman holding Paul by the arm. It becomes known later that Paul has been innocently involved in a theater hold-up, but in the heat and distress of the moment, Judy gives vent to a fearful outburst directed at Paul, miserable and frightened of the consequences of his folly.

Of course, since Judy is made of "good stuff," she soon realizes the cruelty of her words, and apologizes passionately to Paul. Indeed, in her sisterly ardor for atonement, she goes to the opposite extreme, and plans an entirely new life for Paul and herself, desiring to cram a great deal more than his normal share of "The arts, culture, and appreciation of life's fine and worthwhile pursuits" into Paul, who is almost as much horrified by the Greeks and Rimsky-Korsakov as he was by his brush with the law.

A few weeks of this grim ordeal of classical records every night in the week, and Judy's projected plan to "go into the Greeks," Paul becomes despairingly oppressed by the feeling that he is a misfit and a disgrace to his family. He pens a piteous goodbye note and runs away. Fortunately, Judy discovers the note before too much time elapses, and her true character is at last evident, as she sets out to find Paul, conducting an all-night search and leaving no stone unturned. The following morning at six o'clock Judy has at last returned home from her unsuccessful canvassing of the town, exhausted and filled with a very real remorse, for she feels that she is responsible for Paul's departure. Talking despondently to Lew Wheeler, a faithful friend, Judy suddenly utters a happy cry, for Paul has returned. He is creeping upstairs when Judy discovers him, and falls on his neck with joyful tears. Bewildered and pleased by his sister's sincere affection, Paul admits sheepishly that he had fully intended to run away, but—well—he forgot his money.

The story is rapidly brought to a happy conclusion, with Paul restored to his proper place in the scheme of family life, and Judy having matured into a fine, sincere young woman.

Class Day

Class Day, the most beautiful and most gratifying day of the year's activities, will long be remembered by the Class of 1943.

Once more, the traditional ceremonies took place on the terrace, in the auditorium, and in the gymnasium.

TERRACE

Robed in white, Ann Dillon, sitting in the place of honor before the great oak doors of the school, represented the Spirit of Brighton High School.

The Herald, Richard Boyle, stepped forward to deliver the following address:

I. Hear ye! Parents and comrades! We, the Class of 1943, gladly welcome you on this our festive day. For three happy years, Brighton High School has been our Alma Mater. Now we stand at the open door, ready to leave her sheltering walls for the great adventure of life. Ere we say a courageous "All hail" to the unknown future, we pause for a sad and grateful farewell to our loved school.

II. Let the Representatives of the Juniors, who will so soon move forward into our places, now join the Seniors in singing, "Hail, Dear Alma Mater" in tribute to Brighton High School.

III. Some among us merit especial recognition for high scholastic achievement which brings them well deserved rewards, and reflects honor on their school.

1. Let the winner of the Anna Judson George Scholarship for excellence in English (Helen Vavoudes) receive from the Spirit of her Alma Mater the symbol of her victory.

2. Let the winners of the Brighthelmstone Club Scholarships (Barbara H. Berkson, Ann Dillon, Nazarino Mazzola) receive the meed of their intellectual conquests from the Spirit of Brighton High School.

3. Let the Senior and Junior Honor students unite in placing the laurels of their attainments at the feet of their Alma Mater.

4a. We now bestow praise on a member of the Senior Class (Leon Granahan) who has been conspicuous during the year in promoting the Brighton High School spirit in athletics, both in school and on the field, and who has been personally faithful, honorable, and reliable.

Let him come forward and receive a medal which betokens his accomplishment.

4b. We now commend a girl of the Senior Class (Lucille Crowe) who has won distinction in the course in Physical Education for girls.

Let her come forward that her Alma Mater may honor her with the emblem of her leadership.

4c. We also commend a boy of the Senior Class (Richard Grant) who has won distinction in the course in Physical Education for boys.

5. To one school are we loyal, and in our loyalty we are united. But we are "many members in one body". Our various courses give opportunity for the full development of various powers.

Let a representative of our Cooperative Course (Robert MacKenzie) appear to pay homage to our Alma Mater.

Let next a member of our Commercial Course (Virginia Pierce) render grateful acknowledgement to her.

To these two let there be joined one from our College Course (Ethel Baldwin) that together all three may show honor to Brighton High School, and receive the medals which shall memorialize their high standing as scholars in whom Alma Mater may justly take pride.

IV. Ere we move out into the ranks of the Alumni, we transmit to our successors certain privileges and responsibilities which we have gladly and faithfully during our Senior year fulfilled. We relinquish these offices to our Junior comrades with the hope that they may regard them as opportunities for serving their school, and, in filling them, add fresh glories to the name of Brighton High School.

1. Let the President of the Senior Class (Leon Granahan) invest the President of the Junior Class (William Hughes) with the insignia of his office.
2. Let the President of the Student Council (Thomas Flynn) transmit to the Junior officer (Mary Dyer) the symbol of his authority.
3. Let the Editor of the "Brighton Towers" (Helen Vavoudes) pass on to her successor (Arlene Davidson) the tokens of her high office.

V. Now shall the chief marshal (Lois Sternlieb) escort into the presence of the Spirit our headmaster, Mr. Joseph A. Leary, that he may there receive as a perpetual memorial to the Class of 1943 the gift of our year book resplendent in its red, white, and blue colors from the Editor (Nazarino Mazzola).

VI. Let our headmaster present to the Spirit of Brighton High School the medal which shall ever be to her a memento of this most felicitous occasion.

VII. Let the Chief Marshal now receive from her Alma Mater a medal which shall keep in her remembrance this eventful day.

VIII. The Spirit shall here bestow upon the Herald a token emblematic of his place of honor in this ceremony.

IX. Let the Senior color bearers (Walter Adamovicz, Melvin Bloom, and Robin Haseltine), attended by the Senior color guards (Coleman McGowan and Charles Hershman), transmit guardianship of the National, State, and School colors to the Junior color bearers (Charles Cobb, William Hughes, and John Kelly) attended by the Junior color guards (Joseph Ignatowicz and Robert Jackson).

X. Let the Seniors now march forth to dedicate the Class Ivy which, as its spreading branches add beauty to the noble terraces of their Alma Mater, shall become an ever glorious and living symbol of the enduring loyalty of the Class of 1943 to Brighton High School.

IVY ORATION, CLASS OF '43

By Albert Feldman

We, the senior class of Brighton High School, are gathered here today to dedicate this ivy as a living memorial to the Class of 1943. As the roots of our bush grow deeper and stronger, so may our lives grow in strength and our minds in knowledge. As its branches spread toward the sky and to heaven, so may we reach skyward, enriching our hearts and souls with the ever-lasting quest for truth, knowledge, and the better things of life. Not only should we constantly search for truths and knowledge, but we should also put to the most effective use this knowledge.

At this time, we dedicate this ivy to serve as a symbol of our dedication of ourselves to a complete and speedy victory for the sake of God and country.

Class Oration -- 1943

Mr. Leary, members of the faculty, friends, and fellow students:

Today we have reached a turning point in our lives. This is the day which we have long been anticipating—a time set apart for us to look back over the years to determine what we have accomplished in the past and what we intend to accomplish in the future. This is the time which is especially set aside for us to stop and rest a moment—a time for us to pause and ponder over how far we have come in our life's journey—what we have achieved, and what we hope to achieve.

During the past year the weather has been stormy, and the road rough. On that historic, tragic, December seventh we were caught unaware in the midst of a tempest—the whole world in chaos. The clouds have not yet passed over; the silver lining has not yet shown through. We are confronted by a grave crisis, which threatens our safety, our homes, our democracy—everything we so devotedly cherish. Our personal liberties and individual freedoms are in the balance. We must face the inevitable, strive for the right, and do our utmost to promote victory in this war.

Our class motto vividly expresses what is expected of us in these tumultuous times. To march forward into this devasted world—where death and destruction reign—will require courage, determination, and bravery. The words of the class motto, "Nunc animis opus, nunc pectore firmo", "Now we are in need of valor and of a stout heart", convey a message to us, the class of 1943, which we should strive to uphold. But when the crisis is passed and the skies are clear again, there will still be the necessity of valor and of stout hearts. Though turbulent years will inevitably follow and hardships confront us, we have only to remember our class motto and thus bear the charges of our burdens valiantly.

Courage and bravery have been demonstrated by our boys who have eagerly joined the armed forces—on the land, on the sea, and in the air—in order that they may do their part in furthering the war effort. They are nobly sacrificing their time and ambitions, and some—their lives, that we, the citizens of America, may live in safety, peace, and happiness. We are proud to number so many of them among our fellow classmates.

As we ponder over our previous journey, the faithful guidance of our devoted parents stands foremost in our minds. When things seemed dark, they lighted the path for us, protected us that we might benefit. We have been able, through their love and leadership, to have traveled thus far so successfully.

When we step out into this vast world, we shall be ever mindful of the fundamental principles which we have learned at Brighton High School, through the patient cooperation of our teachers, whom we like to look upon as friends and leaders. Were it not for their calm endurance, our education would have been impossible.

At a time like this, the future has, for some of us, taken an unexpected turn; but in spite of this, I am sure, that whatever we attempt, we shall strive to bring honor to our Alma Mater. How could we forget the many months spent at Brighton High School, the companionship of our teachers and classmates, the enjoyment we received at the Castle on the Hill. We shall forever cherish these memories.

Before leaving Brighton High School, let us look ahead, visualize the future, make plans for our destination. Many will join the armed services to do their part for victory. Others will enter immediately into the business world—into war work and defense plants so that they might do their utmost toward the peace. And still others will enter into higher institutions of learning to become the future leaders of their communities, their country. But whatever we do, wherever we are, we shall strive for the peace and happiness of mankind, strive to bring fame and distinction to the Castle on the Hill. We shall ever march onward and upward.

Let us remember the courage and determination of our forebears, of Washington and Lincoln. At times they too became discouraged with the hardships which confronted them. Did they give up? Did they give in? No! They courageously faced the tasks which were before them, overcame their difficulties, and led their people on to victory. They successfully guided their people through treacherous wars. They faced many hardships, but they kept striving for the benefit of their fellow men.

The world situation today is similar to that of Washington's and of Lincoln's day in that it is chaotic, tempestuous. Let us, then, as did our forefathers, go forward with renewed faith in God and live up to the Golden Rule. Then, with valor and with stout hearts we shall triumph over wrong and bring honor to the Stars and Stripes and to our Alma Mater. We can, we will, we must succeed!

JANICE SMITH, Class Orator

Class History -- 1943

(From the diary of the class of 1943, I have composed the following summary. In order that there be no misunderstanding, allow me to explain that "I" when used here, denotes the class, and that "we" refers to the members of Brighton High School.)

On September 12, 1940, I entered for the first time the stately portals of this "Castle on the Hill." A mere child, I gazed about in bewilderment at its spacious halls and cheery classrooms. Here I was on an entirely different level from any I had ever known. Instead of being rattaned or kept after school for punishment, I received demerits or detention. These terms sounded much more mature than the earlier ones. However, I soon realized that basically they were much the same. As I became accustomed to the novel school system, my confidence gradually returned. Only a few weeks were required to develop all the airs of the so-called "high school set".

Within a short time after my arrival, I was called upon to participate in my first school activity, namely, football. Through my older brothers and sisters I found the joy of cheering a successful team. Our boys gained gridiron supremacy, as they were awarded the title of District City Champions.

During the course of this year, we lost Miss Coveney, Mr. Gill, and Miss Barnes. Although those teachers were comparatively new to me, I too sensed profound grief at their deaths.

The school mourned further at the retirement of Miss Frankie Sullivan, brilliant head of our English Department. Fortunately, she was replaced by Dr. Dorothy Lyons. Since her appointment two years ago, Miss Lyons has won the admiration and respect of all her students. We were indeed fortunate in obtaining such a talented addition to our faculty.

As the year 1940-41 was the centennial anniversary of Brighton High School, we were greatly honored by a visit from Governor Saltonstall and Mayor Tobin. Our beautiful terrace formed a picturesque background for the impressive program.

The year passed quickly and before long the Senior Class presented "June Mad". We all enjoyed the fine performance of our elders, knowing that some day our turn would come. This was my final social high-light for my first eventful year.

However short the year had seemed, most of us heartily welcomed the vacation. I am afraid I, the sophomore, revealed my joy by quoting that well known, but childish verse, "No more pencils, no more books, . . ."

Despite all my hearty jubilations at leaving, I was more than pleased to return to my Alma Mater the following September. To my great relief I was no longer the subject of my upperclassmen's pranks, but the prankster. My middle age alone allowed me to inflct my superiority on my timid little brother. Concerned only with immediate school problems, little did I realize that we were involved in the most stirring events the world has ever seen. Our innocent minds could not comprehend the warnings and forecasts of our leaders. Instead, we were interested with trivial and unimportant matters.

In the midst of our revels, we paused to mourn the illness of our beloved headmaster, Mr. Rich. His retirement struck the chords of sadness in all our hearts. For years students and teachers of Brighton High School had looked to him for guidance. Now our dear friend was with us no more.

Fortunately, one of our teachers was appointed headmaster. Being head of the mathematics department, Mr. Joseph Leary was a common friend to all. His characteristics of fairness, good sportsmanship, understanding, frankness, and complete honesty are appreciated by all the members of this school. Under his leadership we have passed successfully through a period of change. To Mr. Leary our deep gratitude is ever due.

Our attention soon turned to a lighter subject, football. Once again "Brighton's bruisers" forced the orange and black pennant to the top. With the full support of the student body, our boys again won the District City Championship. Such an accomplishment added more wood to our rapidly spreading fire of school spirit and pride.

On December 8, 1941, every member of Brighton High School filed to the auditorium. There we listened to our President's declaration of war on Japan. The historical events we had shunned had grown into one huge total, which figuratively knocked us over. At last we understood and realized. With the President's message, there began a new program in our school. Pupils bought war bonds and stamps, air raid drills commenced, Red Cross and health classes were introduced, and last, but far from least, many of the older boys enlisted. Their courageous sacrifices were admired by all.

Everyone understands that during war time it is impossible to avoid food shortages. With this in mind, our government declared rationing necessary. The delightful task of issuing ration books and coupons was given to the teachers. By saying delighftul, I mean delightful for us; we were given numerous holidays and vacations.

Despite the turmoil about us, school events continued as planned. The Senior Class presented "Ever Since Eve", a comedy entertaining to all.

Since I had reached the half-way point in my high school life, it was only natural that I should elect class officers. An exciting campaign ensued, with the results as follows: Gregory Henesy, President; Leon Granahan, Vice-President; and Thomas Flynn, Secretary-Treasurer.

Warm weather and baseball always seem to come together. At any rate, they do in Brighton High. Despite the heat, our boys successfully showed their skill on the baseball diamond. Their efforts were rewarded by Ted Williams, celebrated member of the Boston Red Sox Team. Being a close friend of our own Donald Davidson, mascot of the Red Sox Team, Mr. Williams was persuaded by Donald to speak to the student body and to present the baseball letters. His visit will long be remembered by the many sport enthusiasts of Brighton High School.

It was a sad day indeed when the announcement of Mr. Sidney Peterson's retirement was given. Why, he was as much a part of Brighton High School as the beautiful statues, the terrace, and everything so loved by pupils! For years he had been head of the science department and assistant headmaster. The students chose to honor him in the best method they knew. An assembly was called together by the senior class and a war bond was presented to Mr. Peterson. The words of gratitude and love spoken by the students, inadequately expressed the appreciation for Mr. Sidney Peterson.

The final senior activities, such as the prom, class day, and graduation brought my junior year to a close. Considering that I had matured greatly, as a class, I did not take the hearty and vigorous farewell of my previous year. Instead, I admitted that a change and rest was quite welcome after such a trying year. (Old age creeping in!)

It was but a short time before I happily re-entered Brighton High School for the final stage of my education. I found no joy in plaguing my youngest brother as I had last year. I was too deeply engrossed in my own activities and problems to bother with the other members of my family.

Many changes were occurring in our "Castle on the Hill". Since its first copy, our school magazine had been called "The Imp". However, this year it acquired a new name—"Brighton Towers." The mischievous "Imp" has been placed in Brighton's hall of fame to be viewed as a relic of the past.

In October we were extremely unfortunate in losing Miss Evelyn McNamara. To all members of this great household, Miss McNamara is remembered as a patient, kind, generous, instructor of English and lover of humanity.

Our misfortune continued as Mr. Tully, learned English teacher; Mr. Lewis, ingenious science instructor; and Miss Stuart, helpful commercial teacher; offered their services to our country.

Again, as always, football became the center of attraction. Co-captains Leon Granahan and Gregory Henesy led a stalwart group onto the field. Although their record did not quite equal those of recent years, our boys displayed their fine sporting spirit. Throughout the season their admiring fans were led by cheer leaders Irene Carr, Sally Carr, Elaine Burns, Louise Kilroy, Jean Hathaway, Elaine Boly, Elaine Connolly, Gloria Josephs, and Virginia Raymond.

Hockey followed football in the sport limelight. Our hockey report of this year is one to be admired. The main link in our team was Captain Robert Bowen. I feel confident in saying we would have won the championship if it had not been for a mishap. In the Roslindale game, Captain Bowen fell and broke his ankle bone. Without him the team fell apart, losing the deciding game of the season. However, their work and especially that of their captain, is to be congratulated.

It has long been a custom in senior classes to hold elections after long campaigns. However, this year, very little campaigning was done. Perhaps this was because of the war and the numerous activities, requiring the pupils' time. Despite the lack of speeches and political ballyhoo, the election proved exciting. The results were: Leon Granahan, President; Donald Davidson, Vice-President; Clare Carrigan, Secretary; Gloria Josephs, Treasurer; Janice Smith, Orator; Bert Steene, Barbara Solomon, Patrisia Nolan, Dorothy Molway, Elaine Burns, Hale Lait, Robert Doyle, Thomas Flynn, Marshals; Doris Kelly, Anne Sheridan, John Ardolino, Executive Committee.

Sadness once again reigned over Brighton High School, as our former headmaster Herbert T. Rich passed away. Many of us can readily recall his goodness and kindness. A delegation consisting of Mr. Leary, teachers, and class officers attended the funeral services of our beloved friend.

After several months of rehearsals, members of the senior class presented "The Hickory Stick". The class was indeed fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Burnham. Under their direction the play was proclaimed the best in years by all who saw it, especially by members of the senior class.

While all these social activities were taking place, the war program was far from being discontinued. On the contrary, our student council had stimulated the sale of war bonds to unsuspected heights. With such an able president as Thomas Flynn, and such a fine motto as "Save, Serve, and Conserve", the student council greatly contributed to the war effort. The first aid classes practically doubled in number, and air raid drills were as frequent as fire drills. By order of the School Committee, all students were required to take physical education daily. Brighton High School became the center of body and mind building, to prepare the students for the future.

Greater credit was added to our record through Mary Verona and Russell Wallen, the former winning City Spelling Championship for Grade XII, and the latter obtaining honorable mention in the Thomas Jefferson Essay Contest.

I feel I can not ignore the success of our track team. With Alfred Colby as captain, the team placed first in the regimentals among district schools and second in the districts. They, too, received their inspiration from the energetic Coach Murphy.

Not only has our school won merit in football, hockey, and track, but also it has in baseball. The size of their captain, William Kidik, has no bearing on their power and speed. In Robert Holland we found a first class pitcher, surpassed only by those in the big league.

As the year rapdly vanished, the prom was here before we realized it. Held at the Hotel Continental on a beautiful May evening, the prom proved to be the most successful social event of the year. Soft lights and slow music helped us forget all the day time problems so rapidly increasing.

And now Class Day, the most important day of days is here. Only once more will we assemble as a class. Perhaps that will be the last opportunity for some of us to see each other. There are many vacancies in our ranks, some due to students working in war plants, others due to enlistments in our forces.

Here are the names of some from this class now in the services of our country: Francis Carr, Frederick Shohet, James Temple, Hrard Adjemian, John Artesani, John Bamvakas, Leonard Cibley, Maurice Clark, Donald Culgin, Gregory Henesy, Peter Houhoulis, John O'Brien, Philip Thompson, Robert Lind, Frank McGrath, James Nolan, Harold Kenny, Neal Marshall, George Philips, Daniel Lazovick, John Page, Thomas Martell.

The list is far from complete. Many of us will soon be in uniform also. I pray God that regardless what our station in life may be, it will be worthy of the hopes and ideals fostered in us by our Alma Mater!

School Song
To Brighton High

Music by Joseph H. Gildea

Words by Elmira B. Smith

I.

Hail, dear Alma Mater,
Mother most benign,
Dwelling here in glory
In this home of thine:
Here our Country's Father
Viewed our landscape fair
Saw our Brighton hill-tops
And Charles River there.

Chorus:

All thy children hail thee
Brighton High, we love,
Nigh a century pointing
To far heights above.

II.

Hail, most noble Mother,
Whose home draws all eyes
As did fair Athena's 'neath the Attic skies
Virgin wise, she summoned
All the maids and youth,
Flower of ancient Hellas
Lovers all of Truth.

Chorus:

All hail, Noble Brighton
On thy hill-slope green
To thy shrine our chosen
Come with earnest mien.

III.

Hail to thee, loved Brighton
Proud of thy past fame.
Thou hast nurtured thousands
Who revere thy name,
In the years approaching
May thy children come,
Like a mighty army,
Up to thy new home.

Chorus:

Hail, Oh, glorious Brighton
Pride of every heart,
Lifting high thy banner
Doing well thy part.

In Memoriam

Herbert Thomas Rich

"We have lost a dear and irreplaceable friend." Thus spoke the hearts of the hundreds of boys and girls who knew Mr. Rich as teacher and head master, and of every man and woman who had the happy privilege of working with him when, on the morning of February 16, we heard with sorrow that he had slipped out of time into eternity. But we are not inconsolable, for all that was noblest in his rare and magnanimous spirit is still ours, part of the precious intangible tradition which is the enduring soul of Brighton High School, moulded to greatness under his guiding hand.

Mr. Rich had that most endearing of all gifts, the warmhearted love of humanity that inspires true affection, we respected him for the candid integrity and unblemished uprightness of his character; we admired him for the brilliance and clarity of his scholarship; we loved him for the understanding sympathy, the ready word of encouragement or praise, the unfailing friendliness which always dispelled our troubles or annoyances like the touch of a magic wand, and created an atmosphere of good will in which everyone worked zestfully, eager to do his best. His ability as an administrator rested securely on the bedrock of his genuine love of people as individuals—his boys and girls, his teachers. Effortlessly, he was able, by the profound sincerity of his outflowing friendliness, to engender the spirit of harmony, cooperation, and enthusiasm for high endeavor which have become the accepted standard for Brighton High School.

With the modest simplicity of true greatness, Mr. Rich made no parade of his erudition, but even a casual acquaintance with him soon revealed the breadth of his knowledge and interests. He was at home in almost every field of secondary education, and how thoroughly a master in those subjects of his choice former pupils and fellow teachers can testify, with deep respect for his remarkable and accurate scholarship. He had the complete command of his tools which the superior teacher considers essential, and therefore, quite justly, no patience with careless or slipshod work. Of others, as of himself, he demanded whole hearted adherence to the highest prefessional standards. He united, however, with intolerant scorn for mental laziness and ineptitude, a warmly spontaneous facility for helping the timid, discouraged pupil or the inexperienced teacher. How quickly and easily he made a new teacher feel comfortably at home in Brighton! His learning was wide and deep but never pedantic. It was the instrument of a gentle spirit, used skillfully to serve his fellow men.

Few head masters, surely, have been so deeply or sincerely loved; none has ever more deeply loved his school, or given himself more unreservedly to guiding his pupils toward the highest goals of knowledge and good citizenship. To this task, indeed, he gave himself so unsparingly that failing health deprived us of his leadership all too soon. But the cherished fellowship we have known cannot be lost. Brighton men and women of tomorrow will be telling their children of joyous class periods when Mr. Rich enlivened a dull lesson with his sparkling humor and illuminating anecdotes, always relevant to the subject. Teachers who have felt his influence will hereafter, following his example, hold the bright lamp of learning a little higher and a little steadier.

We pay tribute to a gentleman who worthily exemplified the dignity of a noble profession. We honor a scholar who could enkindle in others his own passion for knowledge. But we mourn a friend whose courage in adversity often strengthened our faltering spirits; whose gaiety lightened our dark moments; whose incomparable wit lent enchantment to the workaday world, and taught us to live with grace and imagination.

To Herbert Thomas Rich, we of Brighton High School, alumni, undergraduates, and teachers, owe a debt of gratitude and affection which we can repay only by giving our own best efforts to the advancement of those splendid ideals of personal achievement and service to our fellow men to which he gave "the last full measure of devotion."
